Annual Report 2004

Fine Craft: Start to Finish

Letter from the Chairman

For Craft Alliance's 40th anniversary year, the organization appropriately celebrated its successes by planning for the future. This Annual Report highlights the valuable contributions we make to the community and demonstrates our role in the cultural fabric of St. Louis. With unmatched expertise, Craft Alliance provides the Midwest with a center for the contemporary craft arts. Unlike any other organization regionally, Craft Alliance serves artists, students, hobbyists, collectors and the general public by providing multiple opportunities to experience craft art. The Board of Directors recognized this unique position in the community and created a Vision for the Future that will lead the organization for years to come: "Craft Alliance is the premier resource for fine contemporary craft in the Midwest." We have long been the premier resource in the St. Louis metropolitan area and have grown to be the dominant force in the region. Strengthening our commitment of being the central resource for craft artists, students, collectors and the community at large is our logical next step and reflects our organizational commitment to a balanced program of education in the creation of craft art, as well as our passion for exhibiting the finest finished work in the world. The Board also adopted a strategic plan with executable goals and objectives that will allow the organization to continue to achieve its mission while keeping in mind its vision for the future. The plan will position the organization at the forefront of the contemporary craft community by providing area artists access to talent and knowledge that they otherwise would not encounter. It is Craft Alliance's position as a leader in the professional development of artists that has advanced the organization over the past 40 years. As the line between fine art and fine craft continues to blur, Craft Alliance is positioned to remain at the forefront of the craft art community. As you read this Annual Report, you will see not only a recapitulation of Fiscal Year 2004, you will see our direction for the future. I hope you enjoy it.

Harvard W. Muhm
Chairman

Letter from the President

Excellence and leadership are the hallmarks of Craft Alliance's activities. The past year was no different, with our organization leading by example in all of our operations. Our programming has never been better! What better way to call attention to the fact that our region is a hub for the craft arts than to mount a year of exciting exhibitions that showcase both the work of local artists and the work of artists from around the world. Our exhibits showed St. Louis the world of contemporary craft and brought to the area some of the best minds and hands from across the globe. Artists from Mexico, Russia, China and Japan exhibited here and in some instances traveled here to pass on their knowledge and expertise to artists in St. Louis. Our outreach efforts gave underserved segments of our community the opportunity to creatively express themselves. Craft Alliance reaches thousands of people through its outreach activities each year, and we feel strongly that this connection to St. Louis is part of what designates us a community resource for art education and inspiration. The Retail Gallery continued to shine and provided over 400 regional and national craft artists an opportunity to offer their work for sale. Over 38,000 people visited our galleries in 2004, a record high for the organization. In its 40 years of excellence, Craft Alliance has taught over 4,500 classes in craft art to over 27,000 students, and held over 300 exhibitions showcasing the work of more than 3,000 artists from around the world. Even more impressive, Craft Alliance has welcomed over half a million people! This annual report summarizes the very best of what we do: educating the community of the importance and value of contemporary craft art. I hope you enjoy the following pages as we look forward to another 40 years of excellence!

Schuyler Gott Andrews

Education

More than 2,300 people discovered new facets of their creativity in classes, studios, summer and holiday camps. Hobbyists and professional artists of all ages explored new and unique ways of creative expression.

In 2004, Craft Alliance's unique programming worked in connection with our exhibition series to draw on the expertise and knowledge of visiting artists, which elevated the educational experience.

Following each opening, the public was invited to attend free lectures given by featured curators and artists. This opportunity was made possible with the support of the Trio Foundation of St. Louis.

Craft Alliance expanded its educational programming in 2004 to offer classes and a series of workshops in the Chesterfield area. Through collaboration with Chesterfield Arts Gallery, children and their families enjoyed Lunch and Learn classes on Saturdays and were exposed to a variety of topics at a monthly lecture series on Wednesdays.

Exhibitions

With its two unique exhibition spaces, Craft Alliance provided opportunities for artists from St. Louis and around the world to show and sell their work.

Our 40th anniversary marked a year of exciting exhibits that showcased the work of local and international artists.

Artists from Mexico, Russia, China and Japan exhibited here and some of them traveled to St. Louis to share their knowledge through classes and lectures with students, artists and staff.

In the 2004 fiscal year, the Craft Alliance Exhibition Series showcased the work of 125 artists in five shows that highlighted the breadth of what is creatively possible in contemporary craft art. Craft Alliance's Exhibition Series is funded with the support of the Regional Arts Commission, the Arts & Education Council and the Missouri Arts Council, a state agency, in addition to the generous support of individuals. Lectures were part of the Whitaker Visiting Curator Program.

Outreach

In 2004, Craft Alliance's outreach programs continued the tradition of offering underserved people living in our community the opportunity to creatively express themselves. Our exciting new program, Crafting a Future enjoyed great success. Through the generous support of area companies, foundations and individuals, 32 underserved students in grades seven through twelve received instruction, training and mentorship in contemporary craft. Student artists were selected for this unique program through an application process and granted full financial aid. Students participated in advanced study in glass, metals, textiles, drawing, painting and clay studios from September through June during non-school hours. Through discussion of their work with professional staff and visiting artists, student artists learned and built verbal communication skills. In July and August, 16 student artists prepared and organized a public exhibition of their work held in Craft Alliance galleries. Students documented their work through sketchbooks, slides and written statements and were guided through the process of preparing their own portfolio that can be used with applications for higher education and career opportunities. In 2004, Crafting a Future received support from Cardinals Care, Jordan Charitable Foundation, City of University City, and the William T. Kemper Foundation.

Craft Alliance marked the ninth year of the successful Emerson Mural Arts program with murals at Yeatman-Liddell and Maplewood Richmond Heights middle schools. Nearly 300 students participated in this innovative, residency-based program. There are now 12 murals throughout St. Louis that serve as a lasting legacy to the artists and their communities. Students were first introduced to the project, then expanded on themes and presented their ideas. They created scale mock-ups by drawing, painting and collage. This process helped them demonstrate critical thinking and communication skills as well as gain an understanding of how abstract images work together to form an image that is greater than the sum of its parts. The final product, a permanent ceramic tile mural, reflects the individuality of the participating students and their community.

Craft Alliance touched many more in 2004 with additional outreach initiatives for youth and adults. Craft Alliance worked with thousands of children at the St. Louis Art Fair, continued special events for Girl Scouts, partnered with Places for People clients to work weekly in the clay studios and conducted a Professional Development Summer Institute in August with faculty from the Jennings School District. Craft Alliance also offered special six-week clay classes through a program with OASIS, a nonprofit educational organization designed to enhance the quality of life for mature adults.

Retail

The retail gallery enjoyed several upgrades to better showcase the finest in contemporary craft created by 400 regional and national craft artists. More than 38,000 people visited our galleries in 2004, a record high. The Craft Alliance retail gallery is much more than just a gift shop; it is a multi-functional gallery center. It offers hand-made pieces created by local artists our customers admire, as well as the best of the best from artists in New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, San Francisco, Europe, and Africa and beyond.

In 2004, Craft Alliance welcomed aboard designer Marcia Smith as the retail gallery buyer. Ms. Smith brought a fresh look to the gallery and introduced merchandise pleasing to all tastes from contemporary and modern to traditional. The annual holiday exhibition gave the retail gallery the opportunity to highlight the talented artists featured in the gallery.

The 39th Annual Holiday Exhibition showcased hundreds of artists and offered the public perfect holiday gifts for friends and family. The retail gallery also hosts trunk shows once a month and is available for special events.
